Dear Justin

Official Information Act Request

I refer to your request dated 17 October 2021 seeking information pursuant to the Official Information Act 1982 (OIA).

You requested:

“What system/systems do you use that grant you the ability to search up peoples names to get information about them or peoples rego that gives you information about them on the spot.”

Police officers have access to an application on their Police issued iPhone called OnDuty. This application allows officers to run queries on people and vehicles. The information that is available and provided to the officer on this application is stored in our national database or National Intelligence Application (NIA).

Yours sincerely,

Steve Pyne
Acting CIO
