No, that seems reasonable given that all data sets are to be centralised in the data warehouse/Snowflake – for the moment a simple list with links ought to work so Jordan should probably liaise with Magdalena on the simplest and most efficient way to achieve this

Cheers
 Robert

I think you were right in the first instance Trish – Magdalena's work will pick this up more generally as she goes through. Because of that there isn't much point in us doing anything elaborate – maybe a Word doc with descriptions/background if necessary and links to data sources where possible, and a link to the doc itself in the Rural Connectivity Study chat that Stephen has put a lot of links in already – perhaps reference in the 'Files' menu at the top of that page? Then we can all add to it as we come across bits and pieces...

Thoughts Robert? Better ideas anyone? Happy to discuss

Hmmm – not sure. Where should we be capturing this? We do have to complete the output description for ‘Rural Database’ – as that doesn’t exist yet... so need a steer here or suggestion of what to do in the meantime. John/Robert – thoughts?

Hi Trish

I can pick that up! Is there somewhere where we are capturing this? I should have some knowledge of the data we capture for the Copper Withdrawal Code work.

Good morning,

Just going through my emails, and this will also be of use, on the back of the data provided by Magdalena.

@Jordan Hamilton – are you happy to pursue the other contacts below, as we build the data picture around what is available now?

Cheers
Trish

Would be great to have this as early as possible, but I think it’s fine for this to be done once Hannah is back from leave.

I think Magdalena would be very helpful to speak to first – she will be able to point you/Robert/John to the stocktake of data we have. We will then need to form a view of what data would be useful for the RCS.

Following that I think the following people would be useful to determine how we got the data that we think is useful for the RCS:

Robin would be good to assist from a Fibre perspective i.e. a stocktake of what relevant data the fibre team has and how it was acquired – but that is in theory all out of scope because we are not looking at areas where fibre is available. Maybe Robert sees Robin as someone with knowledge of our copper data or fibre backhaul data?

Toni will be able to direct you to the person responsible for the Specified Fibre Areas work – this would be more relevant fibre information because it will show all the areas where fibre is not available.

I think Toni or Zeb could also help regarding data from the Chorus' copper withdrawal process (where it has/is withdrawing copper), and what information we have regarding copper performance. We get compliance reports from Spark/Chorus about copper performance.

Hopefully this makes sense!

Ngā mihi
Ben
