Dear Darron Burns

Thank you for your email of 22 August 2012 about school zoning within the Christchurch inner city.

While existing enrolment schemes across greater Christchurch may change as renewal of the city continues, implementing or modifying enrolment zones is the responsibility of boards of trustees rather than the Ministry of Education.

If boards of trustees wish to modify or introduce zoning they must seek agreement of the Ministry of Education before they consult with their local community. You would be given an opportunity to have your say should schemes be considered within your community and before a board of trustees seeks final approval for the enrolment scheme from the Ministry of Education.

To my knowledge there is currently no intention to change or introduce enrolment schemes for schools within the four avenues.

I trust this letter answers your query.

Yours sincerely
