NTM 2018-015

30 January 2018

Minister of Defence

OPERATIONAL CONDITIONS OF SERVICE

1. The purpose of this note is to brief you on allowances and other conditions of service paid to NZDF personnel posted to operational deployments.
2. Members of the NZDF deployed on operations, including peacekeeping as part of United Nations or multi-national forces, are provided with enhanced conditions of service. These conditions are provided to recognise and compensate members for the additional risks and hardships experienced as a result of operational service, including separation from family.
3. The scale of the conditions provided depends on the mission profile, size of the New Zealand contribution to the mission, and the nature of the operational and environmental threat anticipated, and subsequently encountered.
4. The enhanced conditions of service (including payment of allowances) apply from the date the member enters the area of operations and cease on the date the member departs the area of operations.

Enhanced Conditions of Service

5. Operational Allowances. The enhanced conditions of service include payment of operational allowances which is derived from the combination of the Operational Threat component and Health Threat component. The operational allowance components are calculated as a daily amount and classified as exempt income in accordance with the Income Tax Act 2007. Under this exemption operational allowances are paid to the deployed member tax free.
6. The range of operational allowances is as follows (daily amount, tax free):

Operational Threat

Threat Level	Operational Threat Component
Very High	$ 165.51
High	$ 99.31
Medium	$ 66.20
Low	$ 33.10

Health Threat

Threat Level	Health Threat Component
Very High	$ 82.76
High	$ 49.65
Medium	$ 33.10
Low	$ 16.55

7. The current rate of allowances for operational service in Iraq is based on an operational threat of High and a health threat of High. The daily allowance payable is $148.96 (tax free).

8. The operational allowance components are reviewed regularly against the military threat assessment for each mission area. This means that different operational missions may be paid different allowances, depending on their military and health threat assessments. The operational allowances payable to each mission can also increase or decrease as the military and health threat assessments change.

9. A Respite Allowance is paid to members if they are re-deployed within a specified period of returning to New Zealand from an operational deployment. This allowance is an additional $10.00 per day (paid tax free) during the period of the operational deployment.

10. Members are entitled to receive payment of the operational and respite allowances for the complete period in which they qualify for each allowance.

11. Additional Conditions of Service. In addition to the operational allowances, members of the NZDF on operational deployments are also provided:

- a. Stand-down leave and end of posting leave;
- b. Welfare support for the member and their family, including:
 - (1) Communication with family through available audio and/or video means;
 - (2) Access to deployment briefings and information sessions related to deployment and separation; and
 - (3) An agreed level of contact (via letter, phone call, email) with an NZDF welfare facilitator, chaplain or another agreed point of contact during the deployment;
- c. Psychological deployment support programme to members and their family during the various phases of deployment;
- d. Support under the Veteran's Support Act;
- e. Insurance provided under the Member Insurance Benefit Programme, which includes:

- (1) Life insurance and terminal illness;
- (2) Physical loss; and
- (3) Income protection insurance;
- f. Accident Compensation Corporation coverage; and
- g. Casualty management support for the member and their family, including support with funeral costs.

Comparison to the Australian Defence Force Operational Conditions of Service

12. The Australian Defence Force has a similar range of allowances and support package to the NZDF when their members serve in operational environments throughout the world; however, a key point of difference has been and continues to be, that Australia applies different income tax legislation to New Zealand. This point of difference allows members of the Australian Defence Force deployed on "warlike service" to have their entire income of salary and allowances exempt from income tax whilst they are deployed.¹

13. By comparison, only the operational and respite allowances are exempt income tax for members of the NZDF. A member's salary and any other non-operational allowances paid are taxed according to the member's personal tax rate. This is further explained in the following paragraphs.

New Zealand Tax treatment of Enhanced Conditions of Service

14. Before 2007 there were various versions of tax legislation that provided an opportunity for a Ministerial Committee (Prime Minister, Minister of Finance and Minister of Defence) to define an 'operational area' that would allow all service in that area by members of the NZDF to be exempt from tax. These provisions were on an 'all or nothing' basis; therefore if applied, all income, including salary and allowances would be exempt from tax. The NZDF does not have any documentation that indicates a Ministerial Committee approved any 'operational area' for tax purposes before 2007.

15. Defence Force Allowance Programme. When members of the NZDF deployed on operational service to Timor Leste in 1999, the Ministerial Committee did not define Timor Leste as an operational area for tax purposes. However, the Minister of Social Services, Work and Income gazetted the Defence Force Allowance Programme under section 124(1) of the Social Security Act 1964. The effect of this was that allowances paid for service within the operational area would be classified as welfare payments under the Ministry of Social Development and not assessed for income tax. Base salary remained subject to income tax. Subsequent amendments allowed for deployments to other operational areas to also have the same tax status.

16. Amendment to the Income Tax Act 2004. In 2005 a number of changes to the Income tax Act 2004 were proposed by the Minister of Revenue, including:

¹ This included the Australian Defence Force's initial and subsequent operational deployments to Timor Leste from 1999 onwards.

- a. Cease payments under the Defence Force Allowance Programme;
- b. Operational Allowances paid to members of the NZDF or Police for service in an operational area, are automatically exempt from income tax;
- c. The Ministerial Committee (Prime Minister, Minister of Defence, Minister of Police, Minister of Finance and Minister of Foreign Affairs) can determine that any other amounts of income, can be exempt from income tax.

17. The Minister of Revenue's paper to the Cabinet External Relations and Defence Committee, noted in the executive summary that "...additional allowances paid as a result of an operational deployment should be exempt, but not the full pay and allowances paid to service personnel." The amendment was enacted in March 2007.

18. Since 2007 operational allowances have been applied as exempt income by NZDF in accordance with the Income Tax Act 2004 and 2007. During this time the Ministerial Committee has not declared any other amounts of income for members of the NZDF deployed on operational service to be exempt income.

Members Currently in Timor Leste

17. The NZDF and the Australian Defence Force do not have any members currently deployed on operational service in Timor Leste. The NZDF does however have two members permanently posted to Timor Leste as part of the Mutual Assistance Programme. These positions are classified as non-operational postings and entitlements are provided in accordance with the New Zealand Defence Force non-operational posting entitlements policy.

Operational Deployments on United Nations Missions

18. Members of the NZDF deployed on United Nations missions, remain on NZDF conditions of service, including salary and allowances.

19. In some circumstances the United Nations provides transport, accommodation and rationing to NZDF personnel deployed on United Nations missions; however, the NZDF personnel deployed under these conditions are not paid salary or operational allowances by the United Nations.

Secondment to the United Nations

20. The NZDF currently has no personnel permanently seconded to the United Nations.

21. When the NZDF permanently seconds personnel to the United Nations, the individual remains a member of the NZDF; however, their NZDF remuneration, entitlements and benefits cease and the United Nations provide remuneration, entitlements and benefits directly to the seconded personnel in accordance with the United Nations employment agreement.

Recommendations

22. I recommend that you:

- a. Note the range and purpose of operational allowances currently applicable to the New Zealand Defence Force.

NTM 2018-223

7 June 2018

Minister of Defence

NEW ZEALAND DEFENCE FORCE 2018 REMUNERATION PACKAGE

Background

1. The 2018 remuneration package includes increases to remuneration tables, funding targeted to critical trades, and pay progression. Additional provisions within the package are made to cover union-negotiated increases and consequential increase to annual leave liability costs.
2. The cost of the 2018 remuneration package is $22.2 million, which is less than the amount spent in 2017. Support was received for the 2018 remuneration package from the State Services Commission at the end of May.
3. The cost of the remuneration package is within the Defence White Paper 2016 forecast and is in line with the amount signalled in the 2017/18 Four Year Plan. The remuneration increases will be funded from within the Vote Defence Force baseline.

Flexibility and Responsiveness

4. In 2016, the Defence Force moved from biennial remuneration rate adjustments to annual adjustments. The smaller and more regular increases allow the Defence Force to remain within Government Expectations on Employment Relations in the State Sector and respond more quickly to recruitment and retention challenges.
5. A robust process is undertaken when determining how best to utilise the remuneration budget. This involves remuneration market analysis, consideration of attrition rates and reasons for leaving as well as requirements of each of the Services to continue operating the raise, train and sustain workforce model.

Move Towards Living Wage

6. The NZDF has noted the recent Cabinet Government Administration and Expenditure Review Committee decision to direct core Public Service to move employees to $20.55 per hour by 1 September 2018. While this does not directly apply to the NZDF, we have committed to moving all civilian employees and military personnel to a living wage during 2019.

7. This year, the NZDF has proactively removed the bottom civilian grades and steps, and moved employees to the next applicable grade/step, as part of this two-year plan. The 2018 remuneration package ensures that all Regular Force military members are remunerated above the living wage. As part of the 2019 remuneration package, the small number of Reserve Force members remunerated below this value will also be brought up to the living wage.

Remuneration Table Increases

8. The cost of the 2018 remuneration table increases for all NZDF military and civilian personnel is $15.76 million, which is approximately 1.7% of personnel expenditure. A major focus of these increases has been to reduce the gap between the highest and lowest paid military members and civilians. This has been balanced with ensuring that the NZDF can recruit and retain the people that are needed to maintain an effective Defence Force.

9. The funding priorities for military remuneration tables, in order of importance, are:

- a. Largest increases for Privates and Officer Cadets;
- b. Moderate increases to the middle Enlisted and Officer Ranks of the non-specialist sector to address retention issues;
- c. Smaller increases to the senior Enlisted and Officer Ranks of the non-specialist sector to prevent compression in the remuneration table; and
- d. Smaller increases for specialist and critical trades to maintain relativity with the non-specialist sector.

10. The funding priorities for civilian remuneration tables, in order of importance, are:

- a. Narrowing the gap between the highest and lowest earning civilians;
- b. Meeting the bargained outcome with the Public Service Association;
- c. Small additional increases for low to middle grades; and
- d. Minimal increases for the highest grades.

11. The outcome of the 2018 remuneration round is illustrated through personas contained within Annex A.

Starting Remuneration

12. The increases from this remuneration package will result in a starting remuneration for a Private infantry soldier of $47,224 per annum after completing 16 weeks' basic training. This is comparable to the starting salary for a primary school teacher with a Bachelor's degree ($47,980) and for registered nurses ($51,447) with the additional advantage of incurring no study costs.

13. Within two to three years, an infantry soldier may be promoted to a Lance Corporal, which attracts a total remuneration of $55,446.

Narrowing the Gap

14. The NZDF's remuneration tables are created so that there is an overlap in remuneration at the top end of a rank and the bottom end of the next higher rank. For this reason, any increases applied to a lower rank require an increase to the remaining table to ensure there is no financial disincentive to promote to the next rank.

15. Increases for civilian and military personnel in the past two years have focused on the lowest ranked and graded individuals while ensuring the integrity of the remuneration framework remains. This approach is reinforced by the 2018 Government Expectations on Employment Relations in the State Sector, which instructs employers to work to narrow the gap between the highest and lowest earners in the organisation.

16. The gap on promotion to the new rank was measured before and after the 2018 remuneration package to determine if this gap had narrowed. This analysis shows that the increase on promotion, and therefore the gap between the highest and lowest earners, narrowed for Officers and non-specialist Enlisted Ranks. The detail of this analysis is contained in Annex B.

Senior Commanding Officers

17. The remuneration for Colonels and Brigadiers is set alongside civilian senior managers. The remuneration for Colonels is commensurate with the remuneration for the bottom two grades of civilian senior managers, and the remuneration for Brigadiers is commensurate with the third and fourth senior manager grades. This alignment recognises that leaders grown within the NZDF are at least as valuable as those brought in from outside.

Communication

18. The 2018 remuneration changes will be communicated to personnel at the end of June. The communications will be low-key with an emphasis on remuneration changes being a regular business activity.

Recommendations

19. I recommend that you:

- a. Note the details and cost of the 2018 remuneration package;
- b. Note that the State Services Commission supports the Defence Force 2018 remuneration package; and

- c. Note that I intend to communicate the 2018 remuneration package to personnel at the end of June.

- B. Increase on Promotion

Remuneration: 2018

Table increase

At the start of the year Vanita's remuneration was $47,809. The 2018 remuneration review took into consideration remuneration levels externally (looking at the public sector and then applying the 'Military Factor' value), attrition rates and workforce sustainment requirements.

This review determined that Privates needed a 4% uplift.

Vanita:
Vanita is a 20 year old Private who has been with NZDF for nearly two years. She is an Infantry soldier and is just about to complete her Band 3 course qualification.

Trade Value

Zach:
Zach is a Sergeant in the Parachute Jump Instructor (PJI) Trade which provides initial, advanced and continuation training as well as support to operations for NZ Special Operations Forces and RNZAF Aircrew.

It has taken 4 years to train Zach to a basic level of competency (with a training investment of $102,000) covering a wide range of specialist parachuting capabilities.

It takes an additional two years from initial competency to get a return on that training investment, making a total of eight years to reach the rank of Sergeant. Zach's total remuneration is $72,728 per annum.

2018 Funding priorities

Military members

- ↑ By July 2018 Vanita has passed her Band 3 course and can move up an additional 5% in her table. This combined with the remuneration table increase means that Vanita's new remuneration value is $51,025.
- ↑ After 12 months she will be entitled to an additional 5% increase plus any table increases in 2019.

Civilian employees

- ↑ The trade review considered the growth of PJI trade outputs, specialisation and skillsets and a comparison to the external sky diving industry.
- ↑ The review moved PJIs to a specialist sector recognising the criticality of the trade for NZDF. As a result of the trade and table review Zach's remuneration increases to $80,936 per annum.
- ↑ NZDF agrees with Tana – they want to be an employer that provides sufficient remuneration to live on.
- ↑ This year the civilian remuneration review removed grades 5, 6 and 7 and some steps within grades 8 and 9. As a result Tana's remuneration has gone up to $41,540.

Tana:
Tana is a civilian who works as an Admin Assistant in Burnham. He joined NZDF after doing a computer course at Polytech. He enjoys the work and can see a future with NZDF.

This year the Office Manager.

Currently Tana's role is a grade 6 and he is paid $37,759. This is more than some of Tana's friends are getting working in retail but Tana knows he is worth more.

MARKET DATA BENCHMARKING PROCESS

1. All ranks have a job "size" which can be used to benchmark externally. The size also varies by an internal premium placed on the role, known as a tier.
2. Job sizes overlap between the top tier of a rank and the bottom tier of the next rank.
3. The NZDF benchmarks to data from two different market data providers: Strategic Pay for most roles and Hay for Colonel and Brigadier equivalents and civilian Senior Managers.
4. The job sizes by rank and tier are show below:

Rank	Tier	Grade type	Size
PTE(E)	1	Strategic Pay	6

	2	Strategic Pay	21
	3	Strategic Pay	22
COL(E)	1	Hay	20/21
BRIG(E)	1	Hay	22/23

5. Using the job sizes, the NZDF applies three sets of market data:
 - a. Public sector data (know as Sector A, and used exclusively for civilians);
 - b. All organisations data (known as Sector B); and
 - c. Private sector data (known as Sector C).

6. There are also two sets of specialist remuneration tables: Special Forces which uses a premium private sector market and Health which benchmarks to the District Health Board collective agreements.

7. The NZDF aims to be no more than 5% behind the market median for base salary.

8. Once base salaries are determined, referencing the market data and considering affordability, the applicable Military Factor and 4% employer superannuation are added to achieve the Total Remuneration value.
