CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Introduction

Purpose

Our District Health Board is committed to providing a fair, ethical and accountable environment for the conduct of health system operations. All employees are expected to perform duties in a fair and unbiased way and not to make decisions which are affected by private interests or personal gain. The integrity and fairness of the decisions and actions taken by employees could be undermined if, when performing their duties, a conflict between the District Health Board and private interests exists or appear to exist.

To protect the integrity of the District Health Board and its employees, conflicts of interest need to be properly managed. Employees have an on-going obligation to disclose any conflict of interest.

Conflicts of interest must be as transparent as possible. The generally accepted view is that where conflict between the organisation's duty, requirements and private interest exists, matters must be resolved in the organisation's interest.

Scope

This policy applies to all District Health Board employees. It includes commercial transactions and recruitment of employees, any person seconded or contracted to the Auckland DHB and students training in DHB premises, as well as clinical research and related activities such as funding and research grants.

Employees must disclose all interests, regardless of whether they consider they may or may be in conflict with Auckland DHB.

The procedures by which Board members and members of committees identify, declare and manage conflicts of interest are set out in:

- The Auckland DHB Governance Manual
 - Part 2 of the Crown Entities Act 2004
 - Schedule 3 of the New Zealand Public Health and Disability Act 2000

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Policy Statements

Policy Statements Where an employee or their related party has an interest (or potential interest) in a transaction – financial, professional or personal – or could be influenced or perceived as being influenced by a personal or private influence which may potentially conflict with their obligations to the District Health Board, they must declare that interest to the appropriate Manager or Clinical Head.

Where an employee or their related party has a (potential) conflict of interest, this must be discussed with the appropriate Manager/ Clinical Head, and they are to decide whether any change to the employee's activities is required to mitigate any conflict.

Employees have an on-going obligation to disclose actual, potential or perceived conflicts of interest. They should err on the side of caution; if they are unsure whether they have a conflict of interest in a particular situation they should discuss the matter with their manager or professional lead.

Where an employee or their related party has a conflict of interest and has knowingly withheld this information, and/or acted to their own advantage, the employee may be subject to disciplinary action up to and including dismissal.

Conflicts of interest must be either eliminated or managed in the best interest of the DHB.

Conflict of Interest

The Meaning of Conflict of Interest

Conflict of interest exists when it is likely that an employee could be influenced or could be perceived to be influenced by a personal or private interest in any transaction whilst carrying out their responsibilities for the District Health Board.

Transaction means:

- The exercise or performance of a function, duty, or power of the District Health Board; or
- An arrangement, agreement, or contract to which the DHB is a party; or
- A proposal that the District Health Board enter into an arrangement, agreement, or contract.

The functions the relevant individual performs, and delegated authorities that employee holds at the District Health Board, will need to be considered to determine how a conflict of interest may arise.

A personal or private interest are those interests that can bring benefit or disadvantage to an employee as an individual, or to others whom the employee may wish to benefit or disadvantage.

Related party means:

- A friend
- A relative or close member of the family
- An associate

Close members of the family of an individual are those family members who may be expected to influence, or be influenced by, that person in their dealings with the entity and include:

- a) That persons children and spouse or domestic partner
- b) Children of that persons spouse or domestic partner; and
- c) Dependants of that person or that persons spouse or domestic partner

An Interest in a transaction that can lead to a conflict of interest may exist where an employee:

- Will derive financial benefit from the transaction
- Has financial interest in another party to a transaction

- Is a director, officer or trustee of another party to the transaction, or is a person who will or may derive a material financial benefit from the transaction
- Has an interest in another party tendering for work which the District Health Board is contesting
- Is a shareholder of another party to the transaction
- Is the parent, child, or spouse of another party to the transaction, or a person who will or may derive a financial benefit from the transaction.

Examples of interests employees should consider are:

- Shares they own
- Their having made or received a donation or gift
- Their being an adviser, employee, trustee or director of another business or organisation
- Their being a member of a professional body
- Their family affiliations
- Any business proposals they are developing

See Appendix 1 for a list of situations where conflicts of interest may potentially occur. Be aware that these are examples only and that the list is not exhaustive.

Perceived and Potential Conflicts of Interest

Conflicts of interest can be actual, perceived or potential.

An actual conflict of interest involves a direct conflict between an employee's current duties and responsibilities and existing private interests.

A perceived or apparent conflict of interest can exist where it could be perceived, or appears, that an employee's private interests could improperly influence the performance of their duties, whether or not this is the case.

A potential conflict of interest arises where an employee has private interests that could conflict with other official duties in the future.

For advice, please contact the head of the decision making group to which you belong or your relevant manager.

Conflict of Interest, Continued

Competing Interests or Conflict of Duties

Conflicts of interest can also arise where an individual has official roles in more than one public organisation. In these situations, it may be difficult for a public official to keep the roles separate and this can lead to poor performance of one of the roles, at least, and unlawful or improper decision making at worst, or improper use of information to give advantage to the second organisation, etc.

These types of conflict are not always recognised because no private interest is involved or apparent. These situations are usually described as one of competing interests or a conflict of duty, and are best managed on the same basis as conflict of interest.

Deciding if a Conflict of Interest Exists

Employees should ask themselves the following questions to help decide if a conflict of interest exists or could be perceived by any person to exist:

- Do I, a relative, friend or associate stand to gain/loss financially from the District Health Boards decision or action on this matter?
 - Do I, a relative, friend or associate stand to gain/loss in any way from the District Health Board s decision/action?
 - Am I in a position to influence decision making about a matter related to a potential personal or professional interest?
 - Have I made any promises or commitments in relation to this matter?
 - Have I received a benefit or hospitality from someone who stands to lose or gain from the District Health Boards decision/action?
 - Am I a member of an association, club or professional organisation, or do I have particular ties or affiliations with organisations or individuals, who stand to lose or gain from the District Health Boards consideration of the matter?
 - Could there be benefits for me in the future that could cast doubt on my objectivity?
 - If I do participate in assessment or decision-making, would I be happy for my colleagues and the public to be aware of any association or connection?

- Would a fair and reasonable person perceive that I was influenced by personal interest in performing my public duty?

 - Do I need to declare the matter to my manager or to the relevant decision making group?
 - Might I be perceived as favouring a particular person or firm because of a longstanding association?
 - Am I in a position to influence development of a particular strategy or policy that will guide future decisions from which I may benefit personally?
 - When I am making a presentation or recommendation to the Board or other decision making group, are they aware of my interests (including private practice commitments) which might be perceived as influencing the advice I am giving?

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Disclosure and Documentation

Disclosure of Conflict of Interest

After determining that a conflict of interest may exist in a particular situation, the individual employee must disclose any actual or potential interest they have (whether pecuniary or non-pecuniary). Disclosures should be made at the earliest opportunity on the declaration of interests form and documented in the interests register.

The employee should disclose to their manager and/or any relevant decision making group, or the responsible decision making person, his or her conflict of interest at the first available opportunity, for a decision as to what action should be taken to avoid or deal with the conflict. Disclosures are to be treated as confidential if appropriate. A disclosure should provide relevant information such that management can make an informed decision about how best to manage the actual or potential conflict of interest.

Specific information disclosed must include:

- The position at issue (the role) and its functions and duties specifically in relation to the transaction
- The potential value (direct and indirect) of the transaction
- The way in which the interest or conflict will or may impact on the performance of the employees role
- An explanation of any personal benefit – perceived, actual or potential, direct or indirect, financial or otherwise – resulting from the transaction
- Possible future involvements and benefits

Disclosures should be made verbally and in writing. An employee who has a conflict of interest must ensure that the interest is reported to the Corporate Business Manager for recording in the Staff Interests Register.

If an employee, their manager or professional lead is uncertain whether a particular situation constitutes a conflict of interest they should err on the side of caution and arrange for the interest to be declared and recorded in the interests register. If further advice is needed on whether or not the particular situation constitutes a conflict of interest, the matter can be referred to the Corporate Business Manager for guidance.

Documentation

Employees are to complete the Declaration of Interests form and provide it to their manager who will manage the potential conflict of interest. The manager will provide the form to the Corporate Business Manager for recording in the Staff Interests Register.

The existence of a conflict of interest by a member of staff must be documented in an Interests Register.

This documentation should note:

- The name of the employee
- The nature of their interest in the transaction, and
- What role they had in the transaction e.g. No role, only involved in the discussion but not the decision, full involvement.

Interests Register

An Interests Register is to be maintained by the Corporate Business Manager to record all interests (actual or potential).

The Register is to incorporate as a minimum the following information:

- Name of the person declaring the interest
- Name of the person the interest was declared to
- Date of declaration
- Organisation or individual involved
- Brief description of matter
- Action taken/comments and how the conflict of interest will be managed/mitigated.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Options & Appeals

Options for Dealing with a Conflict of Interest

Generally, if a pecuniary interest is disclosed, the individual with the interest must not be involved in consideration or discussion of the matter in which he or she has the interest and must not vote on any question relating to the matter.

In rare situations this may not be possible, for example, if a conflict of interest is identified at or near the conclusion of a process. Appointing an independent person to be involved in decision-making would minimise the actual or perceived influence or involvement of the person with the actual or reasonably perceived conflict.

However, a broader range of options exists for dealing with conflicts of interest that do not have a pecuniary component. Choosing the right option to deal with the situation will depend on the circumstances and an objective assessment of it.

Options can include:

- Take no action because the conflict is assessed as being minor in nature or is eliminated by disclosure or effective supervision
- Allow limited involvement (e.g. Participate in discussion, but not in decision making)
- Prohibit any involvement
- Request the individual concerned relinquish or divest the personal interest which creates the conflict
- Appoint an independent person to manage the process to provide assurances of fairness and equity in the matter

Appeals Process

If an employee and their manager disagree with respect to any Conflict of Interest issue, an appeal may be made for a review to the Chief Human Resources Officer, or the Chief Medical Officer, or through other options available to the employee.
